Campus Life Indicator
キャンパスライフインディケーター

For university, college & vocational school staff

Can be built into your school's website

When admitted students ask "Where should I live?", answer on your school's website.

Just choose a campus, and the map uses color to show stations with an easier morning commute. Build it right into pages for admitted students or your guide to starting a new life.

Do you get questions like these?

- Admitted students and parents ask, "Where should I live?"
- Students from far away or abroad do not know the area
- Worried the morning commute will be a burden after enrolling

POINT

With Campus Life Indicator on your site

POINT 01

See easy-commute stations from your campus on a map

The lighter the commute, the bluer the station; the heavier the commute, the redder. See at a glance how easy it is to commute around your campus.

POINT 02

From train crowding and ride time to a rent guide: 6 indicators

Indicators such as the Rush Commute Index® and the Ride Load Score turn the burden of the morning commute into numbers. You can also check a rough guide to rent.

POINT 03

No personal data collected, so you can post it with confidence

No sign-up, and no email address or phone number to enter. Prospective students and parents can use it right away.

Recommended pages SCENE

- Admission results and enrollment guidance pages
- Guides to living alone and starting a new life
- Open campus events and sessions for parents
